

DATE	The answer to a "Right there!" question is found in one place in the text; you could point to it and say "It's right there!"	My "Right there!" question:	# correct:
		The correct answer:	# incorrect:
	To answer a "Think and Search" question, you must use information from several different places in the text.	My "Think and Search" question:	# correct:
		The correct answer:	# incorrect:
NAME	To answer an "Author and me" question, you must combine information from the text with your own opinions or knowledge.	My "Author and Me" question:	# responses:
		A possible answer:
	"On My Own" questions relate to ideas in the text, but they can be answered based only on your own opinions or experience.	My "On My Own" question:	# responses:
		A possible answer:

Copyright © 2014 Martina Bex • www.martinabex.com • The Comprehensible Classroom

DATE	The answer to a "Right there!" question is found in one place in the text; you could point to it and say "It's right there!"	My "Right there!" question:	# correct:
		The correct answer:	# incorrect:
	To answer a "Think and Search" question, you must use information from several different places in the text.	My "Think and Search" question:	# correct:
		The correct answer:	# incorrect:
NAME	To answer an "Author and me" question, you must combine information from the text with your own opinions or knowledge.	My "Author and Me" question:	# responses:
		A possible answer:
	"On My Own" questions relate to ideas in the text, but they can be answered based only on your own opinions or experience.	My "On My Own" question:	# responses:
		A possible answer:

Copyright © 2014 Martina Bex • www.martinabex.com • The Comprehensible Classroom